Friendly Reminder

Plumbing Hint Why is there sometimes an odor emanating from the bathroom floor drain? The most common reason is that the "trap" in the floor drain has no water in it. Most restrooms on upper floors of the buildings have floor drains designed to collect water in the event of a toilet overflow or leak. These drains are plumbed with a trap, which is designed to keep a small amount of water in the pipeline. This prevents sewer smells from escaping up through the drain. Mopping pushes water into the drain and, when done on a regular basis, will typically prevent unpleasant smells. A more proactive measure to prevent the trap from drying up would be to occasionally pour a cup of water down the floor drain; adding an ounce or two of vegetable/mineral oil to the water will keep the water from evaporating quickly.
